THE COURTS.

AN ACTRESS'S SUIT FOR SALARY The suit of Rose Lisle, the actress, against Messrs. Gardner & Bache, managers of Niblo's Garden, was tried yesterday before Justice Parker, in the Third District Civil Court of this city. She sues for a balance of salary due her, she claims, for her services and those of her husband, Edward Arnott, in the play of "The Gascon." She testified yesterday that she was to have of her husband, New testified yesterday that she was to have for herself and her husband $250 a week. They played one week. On the following Wednesday, at the end of the second act, Mr. Arnote made a peremptory demand for the money and was paid $200, and at the end of the fourth act Mr. Arnott handed her $49. When they were ready to go on in the diffth act, they found that the curtain had been rung down. She demanded her salary for the second week and was told to sue for it.

F. B. Murtagh, the business manager, testified that on the Wednesday night mentioned, Messrs. Garduer & Hashe were absent. At the end of the second was to be withdrawn. He answered he had heard nothing of the kind. Arnott then demanded his money, and he (Murtagh) paid him $200, and on his further demand got him $50 more from the box-office. At the end of the fourth act Arnott refused to play, and then he (Murtagh) gard the green curtain to be rung down. After calling one other witness for the defence and Miss Lisie in rebuttal, the Court reserved its decision.

SELLING UNSTAMPED CIGARS

Herman Leydal, cigar manufacturer, of No. 434 West Sixteenth-st., was charged before Commis sioner Shields yesterday with selling clears on which no Gevernment tax had been paid, and thus defrauding the United States Revenue. The capture of Ignatz Morthe United States Revenue. The capture of Ignatz Morgenstein and Louis Alexander, having eigars in unstamped boxes in their possession, was reported in yesterday's TERMUNE. The men refused to give any account of themselves, and Revenue Agent Webster detailed Deputy-Collector Harvey to investigate the matter, giving him a warrant for the arrest of the propriety of the factory where the clears were supposed to have been made. The captured boxes contained 950 cigars, and the old stamps showed that they came from Leydal's factory. An examination of Leydal's books showed a sale of 350 cigars in the month of May and 600 in the month of June, on all of which the tax was paid. A private memorandum-book showed that Leydal in May had sold to one man 1,900 cigars packed in boxes, and in June 4,324, on none of which had the tax been paid. Several witnesses were examined, after which the commissioner held Leydal in $1,000 bail, and Alexander and Morgenstein in $250 each, to await the action of the Grand Jury.

A WIFE'S OPINION OF HER HUSBAND. Louis Pirod recently applied to Judge Daniels for a writ of habeas corpus to take his child, Jules Emil Pirod, from its mother, Mrs. Maria M. Pirod. Mrs. Pirod resterday put in her answer. She says that she is earnmg a fair living at her trade, and is a woman of irreoachable morality; that her husband did not earn his living, but was supported by her and demanded her nings to support him in immoral indulgences; that earnings to support him in immoral indulgences; that he was cruel to her and abused her; that he called her vie names and was in the habit of using profane and lewd language, and finally proposed to her to prostitute herself to furnish him with momey, which she resented. See says the child is delicate and needs her constant care, and that she is bringing him up religiously and merally. She supports her statements as to her own character and as to her husband's coarseness, immorality and abuse of her, by several affidavits.

The husband's counsel moved to dismiss the return for irregularity. Judge Daniels denied the motion, but granted the husband until 2 o'clock to-day to answer his wife's statements. The husband's coansel asked that the child be committed to the Catholic Protectory, Judge Daniels said quite sternly, "No! No! the child will remain in its present guardianship until the determination of this proceeding."

HOW A LANDLADY WAS CHEATED.

Mrs. Milly Danforth, apparently about twenty-five years of age, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Betts yesterday morning, charged by Mrs. Jenny Norwood, of No. 273 West Twenty-secondst., with conspiring with an unknown man, in passing on the complainant a $50 counterfeit bill on the Third National Bank of Buffalo. Mrs. Danforth told the fol-National Bauk of Buffalo. Mrs. Danforth told the fellowing story before she was remanded to Ludlow Street Jail for further examination: She is married, and has a husband living at St. Louis. She has been living in a furnished room at the house of Mrs. Norwood. Last evening she made the acquaintance in a Broadway stage of a well-dressed man, who told her that his name was Amberly; that he lived at Buffalo, had just arrived in New-York, and was in search of lodgings. Mrs. Danforth, thinking to do her landiady a service, introduced her new acquaintance as an applicant for a room. One was soon engaged, the stranger proposing to pay $5 in advance, and tendering the counterfest $50 bill. Mrs. Norwood gave in exchange $45, whereupon the new lodger departed, after giving some directions about changes in furniture, etc. Mrs. Danforth claims to be entirely innocent in the matter.

A SKYLIGHT FOR THE NEW COURT HOUSE The work on the upper part of the Court House is nearly completed, and the general appearance may now be fairly judged. The heavy iron pillars intended to support a very lofty dome have been re-moved, and variegated brick work has been substituted, hardly in harmony with the Grecian forms of the original building. This brick-work has lessened the central space originally given to the building. The original plan of a dome has also been discarded for a dombic skylight, the upper and outer one mainly of thick opaque glass and iron, the inner one of clouded glass, painted in bands of purple and red feurs de lis. All the sections of the outer skylight and all but one of the sections of the inner one have been finished. The centre of the inner skylight is still incomplete, and leaves something to the imagination as to how the upward perspective is to be completed. The work has gone so far that the contractor began yesterday the removal of the ugly shed which for nearly two years has disfigured the roof of the Court House, and the light was allowed to stream through the painted glass and cast dim shadows on the floor below. inal building. This brick-work has lessened the central

TWENTY YEARS FOR BURGLARY.

George Lent, alias "Shorty" Lent, arrested by the New-York police recently on suspicion of being sencerned in the robbery of Joseph Lafetra, receiver of the Third Avenue Railroad, was on trial yesterday in the Court of Sessions, Brooklyn, for breaking into the gro cery store of Michael Hickey, on Sigel-ave., East New-York, on May 29, and stealing a silver watch and other York, on May 29, and stealing a silver watch and other articles. The Brooklyn police traced him and his two accomplices to Barren Island, but lost them. Subsequently Lent was recognized by Hickey as one of the three men that robbed him. Some of the stolen properly was found, by means of pawn tickets in Lent's possession, and identified by Hickey. Lent was found guilty, and sentenced to twenty years imprisonment at Sing Sing. He is an old offender, and has served in Clinton, Auburn, Sing Sing and other prisons. With Wright, the murderer of Bernard Ferron, he recently attempted to escape from Raymond Street Jail, and not long ago escaped from the Flushing lock-up.

REVOLUTIONARY RELICS AT TAPPAN

The Historical and Forestry Society of Rockand County, in this State, is exhibiting at Washington's Headquarters, at Tappan, the loan collection recently displayed at Piermont. The relies will be shown for about two weeks. There are to be seen the silver spoons used by General Washington during his occupancy of the old De Wint Mansion, at Tappan, in 1780; the door of the room in which Major Andre was confined in the Old Sions House, Tappan, September, 1780; a chair used in the Senate Chamber while the Continental Congress was imbled in this city; needlework, linen and woollen fabries made some 200 years ago; together with the ng wheel and loom on which the flax was spun and the goods woven. The spinning wheel and some will be kept in operation most of the time during the exhibition. The society solicita from citizens of meckiand County and Northern New-Jersey the loan of any atticles of Revolutionary or historical interest. Care will be taken to pravent loss or injury to articles, as a vacciman will be employed night and day, and every rich will be numbered and a duplicate ticket furnished the owner. Benson J. Lossing, the historian, delivered a brief address on Monday evening. Entertsinments will be given on the other evenings while the exhibition remains open.

PORTER'S OBEDIENCE OF ORDERS.

EX-GOVERNOR NEWELL, MAJOR RUGGLES, AND OTHER IMPORTANT WITNESSES WEST POINT, N. Y., July 17 .- Yesterday was an important day in the Fitz John Porter case. Ex Governor Newell, of New-Jersey, was the first witness. He testified that he had a personal interview with President Lincoln at the suggestion of Governor Randolph and others, regarding General Porter's case. He was proceeding to testify further, when the Recorder of the board interrupted by asking what was the purport of the evidence to be given. Mr. Choate, of counsel for General Porter, stated that in his decision Mr. Lincoln said that he did not rely upon the evidence before the court martial, but upon the review, as presented by the Judge Advocate General. The Recorder replied in argument. The members of the board then held a consultation, and decided that the evidence was admissible on the ground that it will give the present President an opportunity to understand thoroughly the approval of the previous President.

The witness (continuing) stated that President Lin coln said to him that he had not been able to give the personal attention to General Porter's case which its merits required, but he had accepted the opinion of Judge Advocate Holt, and that he meant to offer him a chance to put in new evidence; the President added that he had a high regard for General Porter as a gentleman and a soldier, and hoped he would be able to vindicate himself that way. The witness was a Member of Congress at the time of the interview, and was very intimate with the President. Major Geo. D. Ruggles, of Pope's staff, was the next witness. He testified that he wrote the noted 4:30 order, and that the date was put on it before Pope dictated it. He then had to write it out, make copies, seal it up, direct it and detail an aide-de-camp's orderly to carry it. General Pope's address on taking command of the army was read to refute the charge that Porter had used disrespectful language about him, co insel claiming that the disrespectful language referred to was simply quotations from Pope's address.

In relation to the condition of the road from Warrenton to Bristoe on the night of the 27th, when Porter received Pope's order to march at 1 o'clock in the morning the witness said it was impossible to march; the road the witness said it was impossible to march; the road was blocked with stumps of trees and sablings and runs, and the night was very dark; he himself lost his way while looking for his own mess wagon. His further testimony indicated that Porter could get no plan of the campaign from Pope, the latter being very reticent, reserved, and uncommunicative; one time in particular, he left Pope.serious and dospondent, and in a dejected manner. Pope said to the witness on the retreat from the Rapidan, "Don't you think Porter will fall me!" This fell like a thunder-clap upon witness, for he had known Porter for years, and never knew him to fail.

The dispatch to Halleck on the 30th was read and identified by the witness. Its admission was objected to by the Becorder as irrelevant, but it was finally admitted as evidence showing the heavy fighting of the Fifth Corps that day. The witness testified that he suggested to Pope at the time that he thought it was a mistake to say: "We have lost nothing—neither guns nor wagons."

Frederick T. Locke, Porter's Assistant Adutant-Gen-

take to say: "We have lost nothing—neither guns nor Wagons."
Frederick T. Locke, Porter's Assistant Adjutant-General and Chief of Staff, testified in corroboration as to the darkness of the inght of the 27th. He said it was pitch dark. He could not see his hand before his face. He testified that within five minutes after General Porter received the 4:30 order, witness took it, and going to General Morell, ordered him into action at once, adding, "General Porter will be up immediately." At this time it was nearly dark.

George Monietit, of Cincinnati, was captain and aid on General Porter's staff. He strongly corroborated other witnesses in relation to the bad condition of the road from Warrenton to Bristoe on the night of the 27th by minutely detailing the serious obstructions and closely describing the intense darkness of the night. All of his testimony was corroborative of previous testimony of Porter's staff.

Here the petitioner rested his case, with the proviso that he will have the right to call four other witnesses who are now prevented from coming by illness.

Mr. Maltby, of counsel for General Porter, said: "I nesses who are now prevented from coming by tilness.

Mr. Maltby, of counsel for General Porter, said: "I should like also to state, so that it may go all over the land, that some years ago General Porter instituted a close search for three scouts that he had captured on the 29th of Angust, 1862, at the second battle of Bull Run, who said they were Longstreet's mea, and one of whom said he had known him personally when a boy m Alexandria. I also, since my connection in this case a year ago, have carried on a close search, but have been unable to find them. I hope the papers will mention this, in order that any of these scouts may volunteer information."

The Recorder stated that he would have witnesses today for the Government, and the board then adjourned for the day.

To-day, after reading the minutes of the last meeting and filling some documents previously overlooked, the following witnesses were examined: Captain Judson, formerly Assistant Adjutant-General to General Kinz; Havard Stevens, a lawyer, of Boston; Major and Assistant Adjutant-General of the First Division, Ninth Corps. 1862; General John Gibbon, and John F.
Sinter, a lawyer, of Washington. The Judge-Advocate stated that several witnesses who had been summoned had not appeared, and he was not prepared to go on further to-day. Adjournment till to-merrow was therefore had after a session of two hours.

THE SHOOTING IN TENTH-AVE.

LADUE DECLARES THAT HE SHOT STEWART BY AC-CIDENT-HIS STORY AND THAT OF THE INJURED

a brown business suit. He said that the shooting was entirely accidental, and that his wife had been keeping house for Stewart for some time and had been separated from him for over a year. He was endeavoring to effect a reconciliation with his wife, and heard that Stewart had been intimate with her and then ill-treated her. He a reconciliation with his wife, and heard that Stewart had been intimate with her and then lil-treated her. He met Stewart on Thirty-eighth-st, near Tenth-ave., on Tuesday night, and they had a couple of drinks, after which they quarrelled. He declared that he only drew his pistol to righten Stewart. It went off accidentally and shot him in the chest. He said he was twenty-one years of age, a native of this city, and a hatter. He was committed to await the result of Stewart's injuries.

The wounded man now lies in a critical condition at the Roosevelt Hospital. The builet in the side, after much difficulty, was extracted. His left arm was broken by the other bail, which severed an artery. The physicians think there is a chance of recovery. Stewart's story is that Ladue without any provocation fired twice at him. He had heard that Ladue had made threats against his life, but he regarded them as idle, since he had not enticed away the man's wife, nor had he induced her not to live with her husband. She was living at his brother's house, as it seemed like home to her, and gave her a refuge. Ladue was a man, he said, who had been in State Prison, and his reputation was such that no decent woman would be seen in the street with him.

After he was sent to his cell in the Jefferson Market Prison Ladue told the story of the shooting more fully than in court. He said that there was no truth in the report that he had been quarreling in the presence of his wife before the shooting. He went to Stewart's house on Tuesday, to talk with his wife, from whom he had been separated, as he had been sent up the river for stealing $3 from his employer. His wife received him coolly, and he made an engagement to meet her there in the evening with her sister. When he called be found Cernelius Stewart present. No persuasion could induce his wife to go with him. In company with Stewar and his wife's sister he walked up Teuth-ave. After that the shooting took place.

FISH HATCHING.

A NEW PROCESS WHICH BEATS SETH OREEN'S-THE SEA TO BE REPOPULATED.

Washington, July 15 .- Professor Baird, Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, pro poses to carry on more effectively the opera-tions of hatching fish. The method devised a few years ago by Seth Green, of hatching spawn in boxes with wire gauze bottoms set in the currents of streams, has during the past year been abandoned. An improved process has been substituted, of suspending the spawn in a great number of buckets attached to rafts, and of gently and regularly tipping them by means of steam machinery, thus dispensing with the necessity of currents, and enabling the hatching to go on in the open sea.

By this improved process the commission has in the past year hatched 25,000,000 of shad, where, as it is said by Professor Baird, the utmost number that could have been obtained by the old method would have been 5,000,000. The possession by the Fish Commission of a steamer to tow its hatching rafts at pleasure from one place to another, will, it 4s thought by the commission, increase its facility of work to such an extent as to enable it to hatch fish artificially in unlimited numbers. Experiments with other kinds of fish indicate that the process can be applied with equal success to the hatching of the eggs of salmon and of several species of valuable sea fish, especially of cod, mackerel and sea-bass. The Norwegian Government has artificially impregnated the eggs of the cod, and the Smithsonian Institution has procured from Norway specimens of those eggs and young fish up to six weeks old.

The artificial reproduction of the cod, Professor Baird asserts, can be carried on with even greater facility than that of shad, since an average codfish will furnish 1,000,-000 eggs, while the shad furnishes only 25,000. So that if a hundred spawning fish could be procured, there would be hatched out from them 100,000,000 of young fish, and the sea would be rapidly filled with them, along the whole Atlantic coast from Newfoundland to Fiorida. In this manner, the hardships now endured by fishermen in fishing in the cold climate off the northern coasts the United States are the only countries in which the Governments have instituted such inquiries. The former two Governments, while they have made even wider investigations in some directions than have been pursued in the United States, have made no experiments of artificial batching of fish in the sea. The Norwegian Government has obtained the completest knowledge concerning the habits of fish. Since 1869 it has kept a commission of several of the most eminent naturalists of the kingdom constantly employed in getting information about the habits of the cod, herring and other fish. That Government also maintains a line of telegraph along the const to notify to the fishermen the approach of schools of codfish, and all fishing is done under Government auspices and instructions. There are no such fisheries in America as in the Lefoden Islands. Once a year the cod leave those Islands, and from systematic observation of them the naturalists have reached the conclusion that they come to the Banks of Newfoundlaud. The cod, it is said, have also a singular habit of retiring from a locality and of returning to it after a long period of years. Thus these fish have lust reappeared on the coast of Sweden after an absence of seventy years. Instead of taking a million of barrels of cod annuality, as they had been accustomed to do, the Swedes were obliged to import these fish from America.

The GREAT SANITARIUM, DANSVILLE LIVINGSTON CO. NEW-YORK,
Has now over 200 men, women and children within it trying to get their nealth or learning how to keep it. In it, and in cottages adjacent and in tents on the mountain slope, if visitors choose to bring them, 200 more can be made comfortable and helped back to physical and mental vigor. I wish I could impress the readers of The Tribune with the truth that to live rightly is, if one is well, to keep well; and if sick and curable, to get well. If men and women, having common sense, would visit Our Home and examine its workings, and see what we are doing and how we do it, they would learn how to keep sickness out of their families; or, if it is in, how to be rid of it. Would not this befa worthy achievement! The people everywhere are vexed and perplexed by sickness. It is a terrible curse existing at burdensome coat. I venture to say that within the circle of The Tribune's regular readers there are 10,000 chronic invalids whom medicine cannot cure. Ninstenths of these might as well as not have good health if they only knew how to get it. Editors, clergymen, inwyers, judges, it is a terrible curse existing at burdensome coat. I venture to say that within the circle of The Tribune's regular readers there are young nover-burdened and over-worked, precocious boys, and feebly developed girls, are alling or really ill, or seriously sick, and know no bester than to live in babitual violation of the laws of life and health, and foolishly seek recovery by drug medication. Now we publish a health journal named THE LAWS OF LIFE. If these who are getting ready to be or have just beguin to be alck, would subscribe at a cost of $2.50 a year for it, and read it (altifully, and follow its teachings, they would get weil and stay well. And if those who are life.

—no matter what their diseases so they are curable—would not to us and change their habits, and learn to live againative they would recover good health. If this view is correct—and we have proved it on more than 12,00

Amnsements.
